Yonkers Brief:
Protecting Taxpayers, Keeping Yonkers Safe

Property Tax Cap – The City has kept property taxes within the tax cap for three consecutive years, and in this year’s budget, Mayor Spano is proposing to stay within the cap once again.

City Finance Update – Yonkers’ bond ratings are the highest they’ve been in a generation, and last year the City sold its first “A” rated bonds in 30 years, saving taxpayers $2 million in the cost of issuing bonds.

Yonkers’ Growing Economy – As Yonkers continues to grow, the City’s rate of unemployment is down from 9.1% just three years ago to 6% today.

Crime Continues to Drop – Crime has dropped 30% during the past three years. The trend continues this year as crime is down 13% since last year. In this year’s budget, Mayor Spano is proposing to add 10 new police officers and reassign up to 8 officers to newly-created walking patrols.

High School Graduation Rate Improves – Good schools are key to maintaining property values in Yonkers. Last year the graduation rate increased to 76%, the highest of any big city in New York State.
